GROW
YOUR MINISTRY

Ecumenical Stewardship Center
Capital Campaign Network

You are considering growing your ministry through a financial campaign. Most likely, you also are thinking about what forms of leadership will best serve you in this process. Financial campaigns require heightened energy, focus, volunteerism, and funding while ongoing activities continue. Good consultation is a way of securing needed leadership for this important endeavor. A financial campaign consultant provides essential leadership and support that will keep your campaign moving forward.

Financial campaigns are more than occasions to raise funds for congregational or organizational ministries. They are opportunities to deepen understandings about generous giving and faithful stewardship.

Ecumenical Stewardship Center Capital Campaign Network consultants encourage congregations and organizations to view financial campaigns as transformational and not merely transactional. Network consultants have significant expertise in stewardship education in a Christian context and understand the connection between individual and community spiritual vitality and financial vibrance and health.

Vital, committed relationships are essential for any financial campaign. Most financial campaign firms are professional, proven, and will serve any organization well. Ecumenical Stewardship Center Network consultants understand the importance of relationships: the relationship of the givers to God, to their local faith community, and to the wider church. This focus on relationships begins with the initial inquiry and continues through the completion of your campaign. Network consultants will respect your faith traditions and honor their importance in your congregational or organizational life.

Your ministry is unique. Ecumenical Stewardship Center Network consultants work with you to assure that your campaign is created especially for you. Network consultants have a breadth and depth of experience and can assist you with

- creating a vision statement;
- conducting and analyzing a feasibility study;
- developing a strategy and solicitation plan;
- training volunteers;
- developing materials;
- making potential donor visits;
- planning kick-off and closing celebrations;
- other components that are helpful for your situation.

All participants in the Ecumenical Stewardship Center Capital Campaign Network represent non-profit, charitable organizations. The Ecumenical Stewardship Center cares for all administrative details, and consulting fees support the Ecumenical Stewardship Center and denominational ministries. Therefore, congregations and organizations who engage Ecumenical Stewardship Center Capital Campaign Network consultants not only grow their own ministries, but their investment in capital campaign services wholly supports other ministries that encourage generous giving and faithful stewardship as transformational spiritual practices.
